

1 ABSTRACT

2 A system receives a request for an internal web page from an external 3 browser application. At least one internal link in the internal web page is 4 identified. The internal link is modified so that the internal link is accessible by 5 the external browser application. The requested web page, including the modified 6 internal link, is communicated to the external browser application.